BRIAN PLASKON,

Plaintiff,

v.

PUBLIC HOSPITAL DISTRICT NO. 1 OF
KING COUNTY d/b/a VALLEY MEDICAL CENTER, et al.,

Defendants.

Case No. C06-0367RSL

ORDER GRANTING DEFENDANTS' MOTION FOR SUMMARY JUDGMENT

I. INTRODUCTION

This matter comes before the Court on a motion for summary judgment (Dkt. #32) filed by all defendants, who include Valley Medical Center ("VMC" or the "hospital"), Drs. Eric Waterman, Terrence Block and Andrew Oliveira, and certain members of VMC's Board of Commissioners, including Carolyn Purnell, Michael Miller, and Dr. Gary Kohlwes (collectively, "defendants"). Plaintiff, who was a surgeon at VMC, argues that defendants terminated some of his clinical privileges to practice at VMC and publicized stigmatizing information about him in retaliation for his complaints about staffing and patient care. Plaintiff asserts a claim under 42

1 U.S.C. § 1983 based on alleged violations of his First Amendment and due process rights.¹
2 According to his complaint, plaintiff seeks monetary damages and reinstatement of “full clinical 3 privileges.”

4 Plaintiff, who is also a licensed attorney and is proceeding pro se, sent the Court a letter
5 requesting an extension of time to respond to the motion, claiming that he needed additional 6 time to obtain affidavits from unnamed “out of state witnesses.” The Court denied the request.
7 (Dkt. #37). Plaintiff has not filed any response to defendants’ motion.

8 For the reasons set forth below, the Court grants defendants’ motion.

9 II. DISCUSSION

10 A. Background Facts.

11 Plaintiff applied for initial appointment to the surgery department at VMC in October 12 1998. In his application, he stated that his specialty was general surgery. Plaintiff’s request for 13 clinical privileges to practice as a general surgeon was granted in June 1999.

14 VMC uses a peer review decision-making process in granting privileges at the hospital.
15 After obtaining an initial appointment to VMC’s active staff, physicians are required to apply for 16 renewal of their privileges every two years to remain on active staff at the hospital. The 17 physician bears the burden of establishing that he is qualified and competent to hold each
18 privilege he requests, each time he reapplies for the privileges. Declaration of Dr. Terrence
19 Block, (Dkt. #32-2) (“Block Decl.”) at ¶ 3.

20 In May 2002, Dr. Oliveira, who was the Chair of the Professional Performance
21 Committee (“PPC”), submitted a memorandum to various VMC personnel informing them that 22 VMC intended to adopt a concept called “core privileging.” The core privileges for each 23 specialty “were those procedures which a physician within that specialty would commonly have 24 residency training and board certification to perform and which would be necessary in that

25
26 ¹ Because the Court finds that this matter can be decided on the memoranda, declarations,
27 and exhibits, defendants’ request for oral argument is denied.

1 specialty.” Declaration of Andrew Oliveira, (Dkt. #32-8) (“Oliveira Decl.”) at ¶ 2. In June
2 2003, VMC formally changed its handling of privileges for surgeons, including plaintiff, so that
3 the hospital would grant them only those privileges that fell within the list of core competencies
4 as established by the department chief.

5 Plaintiff applied to renew his privileges in 2002. When he did so, he signed a form
6 acknowledging that as an applicant for “recredentialing,” he had “the burden of producing 7 adequate information for proper evaluation of [his] competence . . . and other qualifications.”
8 Oliveira Decl., Ex. 8. Plaintiff’s application was initially approved by the Chief of the 9 Department of General Surgery and the PPC. It was then sent to the Medical Executive 10 Committee (“MEC”) for further review. Dr. Waterman, the acting Chief of Staff for the MEC,
11 approved plaintiff’s re-application only in part. He noticed that plaintiff applied for privileges
12 outside of the core privileges, including ear, nose and throat privileges (the “ENT privileges”).
13 Dr. Waterman noted on the approval document that plaintiff would need to show training and 14 clinical activity establishing his competency to perform the ENT privileges. Plaintiff’s
15 application was then returned to the PPC for further review. When Dr. Oliveira asked plaintiff
16 about his request, plaintiff confirmed that he had not performed the procedures since he began 17 practicing at VMC and did not have any plans to do so. Dr. Oliveira asked plaintiff if he would 18 withdraw his request for ENT privileges, and plaintiff refused.

19 In August 2002, the PPC reviewed plaintiff’s application further. It recommended that 20 his application be approved with the exception of the ENT privileges because plaintiff had not 21 performed any of the ENT privileges while practicing at VMC and because the privileges were
22 outside of the core privileges. The MEC then reviewed, and ultimately confirmed, the PPC’s
23 recommendation in September 2002. Plaintiff chose not to attend the meeting or provide 24 evidence of his competency, despite having been invited to do so. Nevertheless, over the next 25 several months, the MEC invited him three more times to attend an MEC meeting and provide 26 evidence of his competency to perform the ENT privileges. Plaintiff declined each time. The 27

MEC also reminded plaintiff that he could withdraw his request for ENT privileges without any further action by the hospital, but he refused.

In October 2002, plaintiff requested a Fair Hearing. Defendant Dr. Gary Kohlwes, acting as Chairman of the Board of Commissioners (“BOC”), provided plaintiff with a list of VMC’s witnesses for the hearing and provided other information about the process. During the hearing, plaintiff did not call any witnesses, claiming that they were unavailable. He declined an offer for a continuance to obtain witnesses. When discussing the ENT privileges at the hearing, he admitted: “I don’t expect I’ll do these privileges. It’s just very uncommon for a general surgeon to do these at Valley Medical Center.” Block Decl. at ¶ 30. In February 2003, the Fair Hearing Panel unanimously confirmed the PPC’s and the MEC’s decisions. Plaintiff appealed the decision to the BOC. The BOC is the entity that takes official action to grant or deny privileges based on the recommendations made to it by the MEC. Once again, plaintiff was invited to provide any evidence of his clinical activity for any of the ENT privileges, and he again failed to do so. In March 2003, the BOC issued its decision accepting the recommendations of the PPC, the MEC, and the Fair Hearing Panel.

By letter dated November 8, 2002, plaintiff informed Dr. Waterman that the decision not to grant him ENT privileges was required by federal mandate to be reported to the National Practitioner Data Bank (“NPDB”). Block Decl., Ex. 18. Therefore, in March 2003, VMC submitted information about the limitation of plaintiff’s privileges to the NPDB. Block Decl., Ex. 37. The letter explained the reasons for the action as “surgeon requested seven ENT privileges not performed in over three years; physician felt to be ineligible for these privileges based upon our inability to judge current clinical competence. Also privileges are not ‘core’ for a general surgeon.” Id.

B. Summary Judgment Standard.

On a motion for summary judgment, the Court must “view the evidence in the light most favorable to the nonmoving party and determine whether there are any genuine issues of material fact.” Holley v. Crank, 386 F.3d 1248, 1255 (9th Cir. 2004). All reasonable inferences supported by the evidence are to be drawn in favor of the nonmoving party. See Villiarimo v. Aloha Island Air, Inc., 281 F.3d 1054, 1061 (9th Cir. 2002). “[I]f a rational trier of fact might resolve the issues in favor of the nonmoving party, summary judgment must be denied.” T.W. Elec. Serv., Inc. v. Pacific Elec. Contractors Ass’n, 809 F.2d 626, 631 (9th Cir. 1987).

C. Analysis.

Defendants claim that plaintiff’s claims are barred by the one-year statute of limitations in RCW 7.71.030, which provides the “exclusive remedy for any action taken by a professional peer review body of health care providers . . . that is found to be based on matters not related to the competence or professional conduct of a health care provider.” RCW 7.71.030(1). In this case, it is unclear whether that statute applies because the decisions appear to have been based on plaintiff’s “competence.” Defendants also argue that plaintiff’s claims for monetary relief are barred by the Health Care Quality Improvement Act (“HCQIA”), 42 U.S.C. § 11101, et seq. According to the plain language of the statute, however, immunity does not apply to civil rights cases. 42 U.S.C. § 11111(a); Austin v. McNamara, 979 F.2d 728, 733 (9th Cir. 1992) (noting that the immunity provision “excludes from its coverage suits brought under 42 U.S.C. § 1983”). Defendants are therefore not entitled to immunity under the HCQIA. Nevertheless, plaintiff’s claims fail for the reasons set forth below.

1. Due Process Claims

This Court will not review the merits of VMC’s decision. Instead, the review is limited to whether plaintiff was afforded due process and “whether an abuse of discretion by the hospital board occurred, resulting in an arbitrary, capricious or unreasonable exclusion.” Lew v. Kona Hosp., 754 F.2d 1420, 1425 (9th Cir. 1985); see also Ritter v. Bd. of Comm’rs, 96 Wn.2d 503, 515-516 (1981). “Administrative action is not arbitrary or capricious if there are grounds for two or more reasonable opinions and the agency reached its decision honestly and with due consideration of the relevant circumstances.” Ritter, 96 Wn.2d at 515. In this case, although

1 plaintiff alleges that Dr. Waterman had a conflict of interest, he does not explain what the
2 conflict was or how it affected his decision. Instead, the hospital reached the decision honestly
3 and after considering the circumstances in numerous stages of review. Ample grounds support
4 defendants' decision, including the fact that the privileges were not core privileges, plaintiff had 5 not performed the ENT privileges while employed at the hospital, he did not plan to do so, and 6 he refused to produce any evidence of his competence to perform the procedures, despite 7 repeated invitations to do so.

8 Plaintiff also claims that he was denied procedural due process. To evaluate that claim,
9 the Court considers "(1) whether the interest plaintiff asserts rises to the level of a property
10 interest, and if so, (2) whether, in light of the competing interests of the individual and the state,
11 the procedures afforded plaintiff before termination satisfied due process." Lew, 754 F.2d at 12 1424 (citing Mathews v. Eldridge, 424 U.S. 319, 335 (1976)). Plaintiff had no property right to 13 the ENT privileges because he had to reapply periodically to obtain privileges and had no
14 contractual right to renewed privileges. See, e.g., Ritter, 96 Wn.2d at 509 (explaining that,
15 under Washington law, a physician does not have a protected property interest in continued
16 renewed privileges at a public hospital unless he has a specific contractual right to them).

17 Plaintiff also argues that defendants violated his liberty interest by publicly disclosing the 18 denial of privileges to the NPDB. However, plaintiff does not allege, and there is no evidence 19 to show, that the disclosure seriously damaged his reputation, foreclosed his opportunities to 20 obtain other employment, or resulted in his dismissal. See, e.g., Ritter, 96 Wn.2d at 510; Jablon
21 v. Trustees of Cal. State Colleges, 482 F.2d 997 (9th Cir. 1973). Furthermore, the information
22 communicated was accurate. See, e.g., Ulrich v. City & County of San Francisco, 308 F.3d 968,
23 982 (9th Cir. 2002) (explaining that plaintiff "must show the public disclosure of a stigmatizing
24 statement by the government, the accuracy of which is contested . . ."). Accordingly, plaintiff
25 was not denied a property right or a liberty interest.

26 Even if plaintiff was deprived of those rights, he was afforded due process. Plaintiff
27

1 received numerous and adequate procedural steps before the hospital decided not to grant him
2 ENT privileges. He received written notice of the Fair Hearing and the issue to be decided, and
3 he had an opportunity to present a defense including cross-examining and calling witnesses. At 4 each step, the hospital's decisions were carefully considered and based on substantial evidence.
5 Lew, 754 F.2d at 1424. In fact, plaintiff chose not to pursue some of the processes available to 6 him, including presenting evidence at the Fair Hearing and attending any of the many MEC
7 meetings to which he was invited. The hospital had a clear interest in requiring some evidence
8 of competency for the requested privileges, and plaintiff never provided any such evidence.
9 Accordingly, defendants did not violate plaintiff's due process rights.

10 2. First Amendment Claim

11 Plaintiff alleges that his reapplication for privileges was denied "shortly after" he 12 complained about staffing and patient care protocols. Complaint at ¶ 1.1; id. at ¶ 4.3. A 13 plaintiff arguing retaliation for the exercise of First Amendment rights must show the following:
14 (1) that he or she engaged in protected speech, (2) that the employer took adverse employment
15 action, and (3) that his or her speech was a substantial or motivating factor behind the adverse 16 employment action. See, e.g., Coszalter v. City of Salem, 320 F.3d 968, 973 (9th Cir. 2003).
17 After plaintiff makes that showing, the "burden shifts to the public employer to demonstrate 18 either that, under the balancing test established by Pickering v. Bd. of Educ., 391 U.S. 563, 568
19 (1968), its legitimate administrative interests outweighed [plaintiff's] First Amendment rights or 20 that, under the mixed motive analysis established by Mount Healthy City Sch. Dist. v. Doyle, 21 429 U.S. 274, 287 (1977), it would have reached the same decision even in the absence of the 22 Plaintiff's protected conduct." Ulrich, 308 F.3d at 976. Even if plaintiff's speech was protected
23 by the First Amendment, plaintiff has not provided any evidence of retaliation. His assertion 24 that his application was partially denied "shortly" after his protected conduct is too vague and 25 conclusory to defeat summary judgment. In addition, plaintiff has provided no evidence that his 26 employer expressed any opposition to his speech. Defendants have provided a reasonable 27

1 explanation for the hospital's decision, and plaintiff has not offered any evidence that the reason
2 was false or pretextual. See, e.g., Keyser v. Sacramento City Unified Sch. Dist., 265 F.3d 741,
3 751 (9th Cir. 2001) (explaining the potential ways a plaintiff can show that retaliation was a
4 substantial or motivating factor behind the adverse employment action). Accordingly, plaintiff's
5 First Amendment claim fails.

6 III. CONCLUSION

7 For all of the foregoing reasons, the Court GRANTS defendants' motion for summary
8 judgment (Dkt. #32). The Clerk of the Court is directed to enter judgment in favor of defendants 9 and against plaintiff.
